As the Winter season approaches, this is precisely the time to consider an evaluation of your assets. Whether they be a multi-unit building or a parking garage structure, the upcoming Winter weather will surely put your assets to the test by means of ice, water, and chemical intrusion.

You may have noticed a few little rust colored spots on a concrete beam or column. What may look like an orange smudge is usually a sign of much deeper rooted concerns. That blemish was actually initiated on the inside well before you noticed it on the surface, and you may have areas that need a restoration evaluation; left unaddressed, small concerns often times grow exponentially.
